Dear Parents,

Your child will be entering kindergarten in the fall. This is an exciting time in your child’s life. Sending a child to public school for the first time sometimes makes parents anxious – perhaps even more so when your child has some communication needs. You can be assured that your child’s Early Childhood CARES service coordinator (speech language pathologist), your child’s new school, and the speech language pathologist who serves your child’s new school will all be assisting with this transition.

First, it is important that you contact your child’s elementary school soon – preferably by the end of March – to ask when they will be registering incoming kindergarten children. If you are unsure which school your child will be attending, you can call your school district office (see attached list). When you register your child, you will be asked to complete some general information about your child, and you will probably be asked to bring:

- Proof of your child’s date of birth (birth certificate, medical card, etc.)
- Your child’s immunization record
- Something that shows your address (drivers license, mail addressed to your home, etc.)

We would also strongly recommend you take:

- Your child’s most recent IFSP (Individualized Family Service Plan)

Your child’s school will probably want to make a copy of the IFSP (the document which shows the services your child is currently receiving). The IFSP will help them to be ready to serve your child’s communication needs as soon as school begins.

Many of the school districts reevaluate children’s eligibility for special education before children begin kindergarten. Your child may or may not qualify for special education services in school. If you do not hear from your school district by May, or have questions about the transition process, please contact your child’s Early Childhood CARES service coordinator, your child’s new school or your school district’s speech/language team.

The attached information further explains the transition process and the IEP, individualized education program, (school-age IFSP equivalent); it also lists school district offices and books about school that your child may enjoy. If you do not plan to enroll your child in your local public kindergarten, please call your local school to discuss speech-language therapy options for your child. If you should move to a new school district in Lane County before school begins, please call Kathy Clark at Early Childhood CARES, 541-346-3518, so that we can send documents to your new district.

Beginning the transition process now will help you, your child and the school prepare for fall. We hope that the move to kindergarten will be a fun and exciting time for your child!

Sincerely,

The Staff of Early Childhood CARES
Differences Between Early Childhood Special Education and Special Education in Public School

The laws and rules governing early intervention/early childhood special education (EI/ECSE) programs differ from the laws and rules for school-age children receiving special education in a few significant ways.

IFSP to IEP

Your child has been receiving special education services as specified by his/her Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP). In kindergarten, services will be specified on an Individualized Education Plan (IEP). Both plans have measurable annual goals and short-term objectives. An IFSP also includes family goals if a family wishes. One form is used throughout the State of Oregon for the IFSP, while each school district has its own IEP form.

An IFSP is intended to be an integrated plan that identifies all relevant services for the child and family – educational, medical and/or social services – and designates which resources are to pay for each identified service. An IEP identifies the child’s educational goals, objectives and services to be addressed in the school setting. IEP meetings are typically held at the child’s school.

Family Focus to Child Focus

In early intervention/early childhood special education, families are involved as partners in all levels of the process. Family outcomes and other types of services are included in an IFSP. Parents are partners with the school district and are valuable members of the IEP team. However, as children enter public school, the focus shifts away from the family to the child’s educational needs at school. This shift is reflected in the IEP.
As your child moves from a preschool special education setting to a kindergarten level class, your family will interact with people from both your current early childhood special education (ECSE) program and the school district in which you live. Although each district varies somewhat in how it will prepare your child for kindergarten, most transitions from ECSE to school follow the general sequence described below.

1. Transition is planned at the IFSP meeting
2. Districts are notified about children who are eligible for ECSE
3. Records are sent to your school district
4. The IEP process begins

You will be notified and invited to the eligibility and IEP meetings.
The Individualized Education Plan (IEP)

An Individualized Education Plan (IEP) is a written description of the special education services your child will receive in public school. At least once a year, an IEP team, including parents, teachers and school district staff, will review and revise the plan as needed. The IEP must include:

- Statement of the present levels of performance, including how the child’s disability affects the child’s involvement and progress in the general curriculum.

- Statement of measurable annual goals, including benchmarks or short-term objectives, related to meeting both the needs that result from the child’s disability (to enable the child to be involved in and progress in the general curriculum) and the child’s other educational needs.

- Statement of special education and related services, as well as supplementary aids and services, and any program modifications or supports for school personnel that will be provided to help the child advance appropriately toward the annual goals. These services will help your child be involved in and progress in the general curriculum, participate in extracurricular and non-academic activities, and be educated and participate with other children with disabilities and non-disabled children.

- An explanation of the extent, if any, to which the child will not participate with non-disabled children in the regular class and activities.

- The projected date for beginning of services and modifications, and anticipated frequency, location and duration of services.

- Statement of how the child’s progress toward annual goals will be measured, and how the parents will be informed – on a regular basis and at least as often as a parent of non-disabled children – of progress toward both annual goals and the extent to which that progress is sufficient to meet annual goals.

Ready4K

This program offers three free text messages a week to help parents or providers prepare their child for kindergarten. The first text is a Fact (research based fact). The second one is a Tip (applying the fact to an activity) and the third one is a Growth Idea (expanding the activity and skill). They are fun facts and easy tips that are scientifically proven to help children do better in school. The free* program is sponsored by the Lane County Early Learning Alliance and was developed by the Center for Education Policy Analysis at Stanford University. To sign up text Ready4K to 313131.

*While there is absolutely no fee for this service, standard texting rates apply. For more information, go to http://tinyurl.com/stanfordready4k
